What is Recognition of Prior Learning?

Recognition of Prior Learning, or RPL, is a fast and easy way to gain an Australian qualification. RPL is centered around the individual and recognises their existing work-related skills acquired through employment and other non-formal learning experiences.

RPL is an economical alternative to sending staff to offsite training

How employers can use RPL to benefit their business and customers

- » Validate and formalise required skills for a role or classification requirements within enterprise bargaining agreements
- » Identify skills gaps and poor work habits that may inhibit output
- » Increase efficiency and consistency with up-to-date skills and knowledge, allowing your workforce to operate more effectively
- » Assist staff in their professional development and role transitioning within the business
- » Promote a lifelong learning culture in the workplace
- » Support staff in maintaining industry currency and meeting compliance requirements
- » Instill industry and consumer confidence by demonstrating a commitment to standardising excellence
- » Upskill the workforce for major business initiatives

VETASSESS is a trusted partner to individuals, industry and governments in skills assessment and education services
